FIRST DONATION TO NEW PROJECT

In drops a crisp $ dollar bill, a donation from Mrs. Evelyn Goin (right) to a new "Special Wheels" project. At right, Mrs. Margaret Smith, manager of Division 6 Sewing Plant. Mrs. Goin is secretary of the Carver Plant. Other workers there and at the Rt. 460 location of Appomattox Garment Company are having an opportunity to help four children get a ride each school day to special education classes. That's the "why" of that title, "Special Wheels." And that's why Mrs. Bennie Guthrie (not shown) donated a handmade afghan in warm shades of brown, orange and yellow to be given to some donor. Amelia Dress Co. workers will have an opportunity to give to this cause, too. Moses Motor Co. has loaned the station wagon, but initial donations have just about been used up for insurance and gasoline.

Appomattox County has seen a more than 20 percent increase in the number of high school graduates enrolled in colleges and universities in a nine year span, 1962-1971.

Appomattox County, which sent only 20 per cent of its graduates to colleges and universities in 1962, was able to place 42 per cent in institutions of higher learning last year.

Appomattox, which ranks 47th of the counties in Virginia in wealth from taxable sources per child, placed 23rd among the 96 localities in effort, spending $303 per pupil in average daily attendance.

During this time Appomattox County's enrollment increased from 2,301 to 2,313 pupils.

The county increased its percentage of instructional personnel holding degrees during the past decade.

In 1962, 72 per cent of the school instructional staff held degrees. Now, 94% hold degrees.

Teachers' pay nearly doubled during the past decade. Average salaries jumped from $4,214 in 1962 to an average of $7,769 last year – an 84 per cent increase.

Pupil-teacher ratio last year in Appomattox was 22.03 to 1. That average compares with a county average of 22.36 to 1 for 96 Virginia counties and a 21.96 to 1 teacher-pupil ratio for all Virginia school divisions in – cluding both cities and counties.

Town Council Reviews Water & Sewage Needs

Water and sewage needs for the new county high school and growing residential and industrial demands on the Town of Appomattox and surrounding area were subject for discussion and review at Monday evening's Town Council meeting.

All councilmen were present, with mayor H. B. Pack presiding.

The mayor reported that the Regional Planning Commission has reviewed the "Comprehensive Water and Sewage Report" on Appomattox County" prepared by Hankins and Anderson, consulting engineers of Richmond. The Hankins and Anderson firm is now preparing two applications of intent to submit to the federal Farm and Home Administration. These applications deal with plans by the town to upgrade both water and sewage facilities.

In other action Monday, council agreed to supplement the county dog warden's salary (Leonard Garrett) in exchange for more detailed policing of the town area during the dog confinement period, April 15 to June 15.

Council also authorized Fire Committee chairman Martin Webb either to buy or lease a radio for the county-town owned tanker, this being the only radio installation needing immediate attention. Robert Hubbard made the motion, seconded by Mrs. Calvin Robinson.

The mayor said that he, in the company of several others requested a three-month confinement of dogs both for protection against rabies and for the protection of wildlife.

The mayor, reporting on the town's water supply said that the town has an option on property owned by John Cole and that the town is currently working with prospective well drillers on ar-

Mrs. Pauline DePew is sponsor. The girls wore gold blouses with long, multi-colored skirts and black, lace-up belts. Above them, Brenda Ferguson, Kay Paulette, Fay Paulette and top row: Joe Vaughan, H. T. Nash and Gary Wooldridge. By the way, the singers started with that vintage tune, "As Time Goes By" and added to it more modern numbers, "Turn, Turn, Turn", "Consider Now The Lilies," "Color My World", "Yesterday", "Today", and "Pave Your Way Into Tomorrow." Joe Vaughan, and Jimmy Chandler (not shown) played guitar accompaniment.

Jamerson Is Low Bidder On New County High School

J. E. Jamerson and Sons, Inc. of Appomattox submitted the lowest bid of three as school board chairman, R. H. Gray opened bids for a new Appomattox County High School in the present school auditorium at two p.m. Tuesday afternoon.

Jamerson, with a base bid of $3,154,674 is apparent low bidder. Motley Construction Co., Farmville, submitted a base bid of $3,265,000. and C. L. Lewis and Company, Lynchburg, submitted a bid of $3,441,443.

Each bidder submitted alternate bids, an additional sum for excavation under the proposed Vocation-Agricultural Building and deductions for alternate fascia design and for the elimination of a gymnasium partition.

Previous to the advertisement for bids, Appomattox County Supervisors in December of 1971 approved a resolution from the Appomattox County School Board requesting the supervisors to issue $2 million in bonds to be sold to the Va. Public School authority.

This action by the supervisors means also that Appomattox is eligible to obtain $500,000 in vocational funds to assist in the construction of a vocational-agriculture building. Those funds have been assured to the county provided construction is begun by July of 1972, according to superintendent Earl J. Smith.

Additional funds for the school will be obtained through a Literary Fund loan of $500,000, also a low interest source of funds for school construction.

The school board said that they will consider all bids submitted before making any further announcement.

Bids were also opened Tuesday afternoon from firms bidding on supplying furniture and equipment for the new high school.

Jamerson, in a breakdown of his bid, submitted a bid of $72,195 additional for excavation under the Vo-Ag building. Lewis bid $115,000 and Motley, $90,000.

Jamerson said that construction would require 780 days; Lewis, 790 days and Motley, 770 days.

An alternate bid, a deduction for change in fascia was $26,-500, Jamerson; $26,000, Lewis; and $40,000, Motley Const. Co. The alternate #3 bid, for elimination of a gymnasium partition amounted to $11,800, Jamerson; $12,000, Lewis and $12,900, Motley Const. Co.
